DRC looks to lake associations

The disaster relief committee for Minden Hills will be reaching out to property owners' associations in its fundraising efforts.

The committee - which will look after fundraising for the private portion of the Ontario Disaster Relief Assistance Program and the review of claims - held its second meeting on June 3.

The DRC is having special donation envelopes printed up for distribution at the annual general meetings of property owners' associations.

This needs a little rush action," said chairwoman Jeanne Anthon, indicating that association meetings have already begun for the summer.

Jack Brezina, who's been chosen by his colleagues on the committee to be the face of fundraising, said he expected he could have the envelopes by the end of the week.

With the committee putting a cap for the project at $500, Brezina wondered whose money the group would be

"I'm going to say that we don't have that answer yet," said township treasurer Lorrie Blanchard.

Free CPR courses in Minden

The county's EMS department is hosting free public CPR courses in Haliburton and Minden.

The courses are scheduled for Thursday, June 6 at the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 129 in Haliburton and Monday, June 17 at the Minden Hills Community Centre in Minden. Courses will run from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The Heart and Stroke Foundation of Canada encourages all Canadians to be familiar with CPR.

Starting CPR on a patient immediately can increase their chances for survival of a heart attack by almost 40 per cent.

Participants will work in pairs with the CPR Anytime

Course Kit.

The kit is a portable CPR course in a box and teaches the skills to perform CPR on both children and adults.

Participants will be able to take the kit home for further practice and to share the training with family and friends.

This program is ideal for anyone who would like to learn CPR and does not need a course completion card.

This is a free workshop, but we ask that participants register ahead of time to ensure there are enough kits.

To register or for more information call Amy Brohm at 705-457-1616 or email abrohm@county.haliburton.

Donations to the Public Access Defibrillator (PAD) program are appreciated.

Some facts:

- Almost 80 per cent of cardiac arrests occur at home or in public places, and almost half are witnessed by a family member or friend.
- The survival rate of victims of sudden cardiac arrest is a dismal five per cent, because the majority of those witnessing the arrest do not perform CPR.
- Knowing how to respond to a cardiac arrest can increase the odds of survival and recovery by 30 per cent

Conjurors donate to artists in school programs

Michael Fay, on behalf of the Conjurors of County Town, a project of Arts Alive Minden, presented Stella Voisin, education committee chairwoman of the Arts Council~Haliburton Highlands with a cheque for $2,327 for the Artists in the Schools Program (AITS).

Fay reported that the Conjurors have consistently sought to involve local young people in creating, producing and performing original work that has, over eight years of activity fuelled by dedicated, courageous and persevering volunteers, included all aspects of theatre, story-telling, pageantry, dance, mask-work and music.

Accordingly, this donation will be directed to enlarge and/or strengthen the performing arts components of the AITS program. Gail Stelter, co-ordinator for the program, is thrilled to know that dance, drama and storytelling artists will be funded for more sessions in the next school year.

Look for more unique arts education experiences in Haliburton County elementary classrooms led by professional local artists such a Julie Barban, Chyna Schell, Jackie McChesney and Fay Wilkinson.

Pot seized in Minden

More than 700 marijuana plants were seized from a property on Buller Road in Minden Hills last week.

According to Haliburton Highlands OPP, on May 29, officers went to the residence to find 715 plants of various sizes. They charged a 48-year-old Minden man with production of marijuana and failing to comply with recognizance.

He was held in custody until his bail hearing May 31.

Fruit trees for Haliburton County

Abbey Gardens, the Haliburton Highlands Community Garden Network and the Municipality of Highlands East collaborated on an "edible tree" grant offered by Tree Canada and their sponsors, Taste of Nature and Loblaw.

They were one of 20 applicants to receive funding throughout all of Canada.

The grant enabled them to purchase fruit trees for 10 community gardens and public spaces in Haliburton County, educate residents on the care of trees (including existing heritage trees), promote fruit trees as a viable food source and provide an opportunity for processing fruits for extended enjoyment.

Together, they introduced 100 apple and pear trees to Haliburton County.

Annual Rotary auction supports relief

Angelica Blenich

Staff reporter

The Minden Rotary Club's annual charity auction and dinner had its second highest turnout in its history.

Held on June 1 at the Minden Community Centre, the 13th annual fundraiser sold 215 tickets, said club president Brent Devolin.

"It was the second biggest year ever for paid attendance," he said.

The president estimates the event brought in approximately $15,000, which he was very happy about.

"In a rolling five year average we were about seven or eight per cent up [in funds raised]," said Devolin.

Dinner was hosted by the Minden Agricultural Society and the evening included auction items such as an Ottawa getaway package, tickets to see Sting in concert and a guided fishing excursion.

This year part of the event's proceeds were going to Minden flood relief, following the devastating damages occurred in April and May of this year.

The club has 17 members in total, four of which were directly affected by the flood.

"Some of them were totally out of their homes and I traipsed across the field in mud for weeks," said Devolin, a resident of Anson Street.

The club hosts four fundraisers during the summer months, two of which will be donating all proceeds exclusively to flood relief, said Devolin.

Part of the proceeds from the auction and the annual bluegrass festival will be used for ongoing commitments the organization is dedicated to.

"Whatever is [raised] above our core commitments is going to go to flood relief," said Devolin.

Over the years the service club has contributed to many international and local community projects, including the Minden hospital, youth leadership programs and River-

At press time, the committee was still waiting for updated ODRAP guidelines, which reps who visited Minden for the committee's inaugural meeting last week said should be available shortly.

The province is also supposed to be providing updated eligible amounts for items replaceable under ODRAP.

The program will replace up to 90 per cent of items deemed essential, including structural damage and basic furniture and appliances.

The province has indicated that items will be replaced according the value of new, basic models.

It has indicated the eligible amount for a new refrigerator is $650.

"How can we expedite an answer? It's been a week," said Anthon.

Members suggested contacting Reeve Barb Reid or MPP Laurie Scott in an attempt to speed up the process.

Minden Hills's initial estimate for private damage was approximately $4 million.

The province will provide up to double the amount of money the township is able to raise though its trust fund.

The committee must send a fundraising target and time frame, but has decided not to do so until claims are in. Claims can't be submitted until the province provides updated guidelines.

So far, $265,000 has been raised for the flood relief trust fund.

The committee will also be sending out fundraising letters in Minden Hills's tax bill and Brezina has suggested seeing if other townships in the county would be willing to send letters in their bills as well.

Brezina also suggested a promotional campaign in Minden's downtown, with posters in windows instructing visitors how to donate to flood relief, as well as perhaps a video with looped images of the flood.

Committee members said they knew an individual who could help with this.

A downtown storefront has also been made available to the committee to use free of charge if members wish to use it.

Marie Gage has started a crowd funding campaign online called Mending Minden with company Indiegogo and committee members said they'd like to learn more

The committee also talked about acknowledging those who donate to the cause. "I think every donation, whether it's a dollar or a thousand dollars, is valuable," Brezina said.

The township is in the process of hiring a project manager, who will work in conjunction with the committee, performing the day-to-day administrative tasks.

Applications closed last week and there are five individuals to be interviewed.

The position is paid for by the province.

Council strikes down joint media policy

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

Minden Hills councillors struck down a proposed IT and social media policy for the township during their May 30

The nine-page document known as Policy 80 was drawn up by chief administrative officer Nancy Wright-Laking.

"These policies are long overdue," Wright-Laking said, pointing out many other townships have such in place. "We are moving forward with our new website and we need to have some of these rules in place."

The policy contained two sections; one on information technology and one on social media.

This policy permits certain personal uses to be completed on the township's systems provided such uses are made in accordance with this policy," the IT section read. "However, employees do not have any personal privacy rights when using the Township of Minden Hills IT assets."

The policy detailed guidelines for personal usage, as well as rules around hardware and software, the disposal of hardware and software, network use, virtual private networks, email, Intenet, cellphone/Blackberry/iPhone usage, security and user accounts and passwords, removable media and viruses.

The policy read that all usage could be inspected at any time, without warning, and prohibited uses such as harassment, job searching, gambling or "politically oriented sites or sites devoted to influencing the course of legislation or public policy."

"Violation of any part of this policy could result in disciplinary action deemed necessary by the township up to and including dismissal. In all cases, the chief administrative officer and the employee's department head will investigate and determine if there is extenuating circumstances or a valid reason for not following the policy. Such cases will be recorded in writing to the employee, the employee's personal file and to the IT department. Violations by individual council members will be addressed and dealt with by the municipal council."

The social media section dealt with employees' and councillors' personal use of sites such as Facebook and Twitter.

'Employees' own personal pages are not the platform to discuss township issues, other employees, clients and business relationships," it read. "Many employees are highly visible in the township and should be aware that personal posts not only impact on them professionally, but also their employer."

It went to read that employees and councillors should also use the disclaimer their views are their own and not those of the township.

"Social media should not be used to insult or harm your employer, management, colleagues, clients, business partners or the public," it read. "Further to this, township employees should avoid posting anything that could be seen as reflecting political, racist, sexist or religious or other bias or favouritism that could be used to tarnish the reputation of the township."

Councillors weren't interested in the policy as it was pre-

Councillor-at-large Larry Clarke said in his experience IT and social media policies existed as separate items.

Clarke, who said he personally was not a user of social media, thought that aspect required more conversation by

"I think what's needed is some discussion of what's appropriate use of these tools," he said.

Councillor Brigitte Gall said she'd looked at policies for surrounding municipalities, including the County of Haliburton, and thought the IT and social media components should exist as separate policies.

Gall, who said the social media policy "could only offer guidelines and recommendations for personal use," said she wouldn't be supporting the policy as written.

"Minden Hills has been without a social media policy thus far," the councillor said, adding that it couldn't hurt to wait a little longer so councillors would have a chance to research such policies.

Deputy-reeve Cheryl Murdoch thought there were some good things being put forward in the policy, but said there were some components she wasn't so sure about.

Murdoch also wanted to see IT and social media guidelines separated.

The policy was voted down.

Minden Hills waives lottery licence fees for relief fundraising

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed during a May 30 Minden Hills council meeting.

Council agreed to waive lottery licence fees for those holding fundraising events for Minden flood relief. A report from CAO Nancy-Wright Lakinsaid the waiver would have a minimal financial impact for the township and would maximize the revenues from fundraising.

Decision deferred

Councillors deferred a decision on the construction of a parking lot near the Haliburton Highlands Health Services facility in Minden after hearing a report from planning administrator Adam King. Some adjacent property owners have concerns about the proposed project and the representatives from the hospital will be meeting with them.

Sewer flushing contract awarded

Council agreed a request from environmental and property operations manager Ivan Ingram to flush Minden's sewer system following the flood that began in Minden on April 19. That contract will go to The Pipe Spy Inc. for approximately $18,700.

INDEN HILLS councillors made the right decision last week, voting down a proposed IT/social media

Councillors felt there should be separate policies for each component and wanted more time to research and familiarize themselves with the concept of a policy for social

It was the right decision because the ninepage document was excessive.

Yes, many companies and corporations have policies guiding the use of their information technology and this only makes sense.

I'm sure everyone's in agree-ment that staff shouldn't be using municipal technology to harass people or gamble.

However, the proposed policy blatantly stated that employees do not have any personal privacy rights when using the township's IT assets and the policy read that all usage could be checked by superiors, without any notice.

And while this may be common practice for some institutions and corporations, it seems distrustful, Big Brother-ish and, frankly, a little creepy.

Oh, and of course there's this gem, a mainstay of Minden Hills policy: "Violation of any part of this policy could result in disciplinary action deemed necessary by the township up to and including dismissal."

Seemingly, every policy must become a potential tool for the termination of employ-

A policy governing employees' personal use of social media shouldn't even exist.

It's not the township's place to tell anyone, employees included, how they should be using social media.

It flies in the face of free speech, guaranteed to Canadians in the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Pretty sure that document trumps some Draconian municipal bylaw.

"Employees who participate in inappropriate use of social media and/or communication including those made during off working hours may be subject to disciplinary action including termination of employment," it read.

Really? Who decides what constitutes "inappropriate" use?

Councillors would be foolish to support such a measure.

The township shouldn't be telling employees and councillors what they can/cannot do with their personal social media

Because they're people, not wholly owned subsidiaries of the Corporation of the Township of Minden Hills.

People have opinions. People make off-colour remarks. People disagree.

It's what makes us interesting. It's what makes society function.

If an employee is Christian and wants to go on some religious rant on her Facebook page, she should be able to do so, because that's her right as a citizen of this country.

If an employee wants to state that he thinks Stephen Harper is the worst Prime Minister in living memory, that's his right as a citizen of this country.

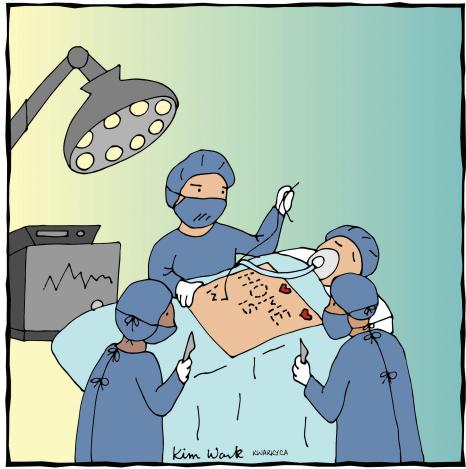

If councillors want to take to Twitter to criticize other members of council over council business, they should be able to do so, because that's their right as citizens of this

Just last week, Toronto Councillor Josh Matlow tweeted that the city needed a new Ďemocracy shouldn't be whitewashed based on some outdated, middle-aged perception of professionalism.

It's messy and imperfect. Just like all of us.

letters to the editor

Is the water being held back?

To the Editor,

This is the text of an email I sent to Kris Windover, Chris Riddle, Barry Devolin, Laurie Scott and Barbara Reid:

In the four days following the Victoria Day long weekend the water in Mountain Lake is up about 18 to 24 inches. Is the water being held back again?

It seems to me that the Gull River watershed was doing just fine for thousands of years until the intervention of man. The fish, wildlife and birds were also doing just fine.

I would suggest that in the fall when the lakes are lowered all of the logs be removed from all of the dams on the Gull River watershed and not replaced until April 15 of the following year.

You indicated last year that you can recover water in the lakes at a rate of an inch a day when there seems to be a shortage of water (Rising Water Level Alert on February 8, 2013), that should be enough water for all of the downstream needs.

points of view

Freedom's just another word for ...

HIS MORNING I saw an online image that depicted a person playing a grand piano on a floating dock. It was idyllic, especially since that person was silhouetted against a sunset on what was presumably a wonderful summer day on a placid little lake. The caption said something like, "What does your future look like?"

At first I thought it was an ad about drug abuse. It turned out it was pushing Freedom 55.

It was an easy mistake to make. You've got to admit that anyone who would hire movers to put an expensive grand piano out on an unstable floating dock just might have used a drug or two. This is not normal behavior by anyone's standards.

At the very least it begs and intervention.

I could just see it.

"Dad, when you move the family piano out on the dock, I feel angry because the seagulls crap all over it and the neighbours think you've been drinking again."

I suppose the ad is probably insinuating that if you handle your money well, you'll have plenty of piano-moving cash and can move it on a whim, wherever and whenever you want. Or maybe they're just trying to suggest that your newfound talent will be so questionable that your spouse will able that your spouse will spend his or her hard-earned retirement funds to ensure that you practice on a faraway lake where you can pay back those pesky loons with endless renditions of Chopsticks. I don't know.

What I do know is that this whole scenario is highly impractical and not nearly as romantic as it appears at first blush. Let's face it; the first jet ski that rooster-tails by would make short work of any piano recital you were trying to give. And I defy anyone to concentrate on a complex classical piece when mosquitoes and deer flies are using them for an entrée.

Look, I get it. Manage your money well and you can do just about anything. That's a very nice sentiment.

Still, I think if you were cautious enough to take care of your investments this far, it makes no sense to throw good money after bad by moving a presumably expensive piano out on the dock just to showboat for the neighbours.

This is the kind of thing that would incite a drive-by volley of water balloons on most lakes or, at the very least, a long, unpleasant visit from the president of the cottager's association. The people at Freedom 55 ought to know this.

So, save your money. Invest it wisely and don't think that once you get to 55 this gives you the license to do stupid, whimsical things that will annoy the neighbours. People will talk.

If you want to play music on a floating dock, that's fine. But I'd suggest you start by doing so with a guitar like everybody else. Just make sure you're playing unplugged.

Death on a grand scale

Steve Galea

Beyond 35

HE JAGGED END of the broken beech is fresh enough that the wood is still bright, ragged slivers of fibre torn asunder when the tree snapped in some winter wind.

The tree would have been dead well before it came crashing down. Nearby, another broken beech top long held aloft by a thin hinge far above my head is on the ground too.

Men with ropes and far more bush savvy than I will ever acquire might have harvested it years ago, but I leave such dangerous hangups to solve themselves.

Nearby another old giant stands naked and grim amidst the fine June greenery of Sapsucker Ridge, waiting to be turned into firewood.

The trees already on the ground may be past cutting and splitting, for beech is quick to rot once it hits the ground, by far the quickest to rot of all our native hardwoods.

In a healthy forest, its perfectly smooth gray skin stands out among the corrugated bark of the maple, ash and basswood and the raggedy wrappings of the birches. It looks impervious.

Now The Brown Dog Jiggs and I stand in a beech graveyard, just where the land climbs out of the wetland that trims my road frontage, the kind of setting where the Ridge's gentle giants once prospered.

But now, all of my 50 acres, all of my Haliburton neighbourhood, perhaps all of settled Haliburton County, has become a graveyard for beech trees.

Even 40 years ago, the great towering trees were only occasional interlopers in a Sapsucker landscape dominated by sugar maples. Big as they were, some of them must have taken root before Wolfe took Montcalm.

Now even most of those still living are leafless at the top. The dead stand barren until they break. All that is left of the rest are fallen trunks often too fat to harvest, ghostly stumps and openings in the forest canopy.

The Brown Dog Jiggs noses about in the leaf duff for clues to their demise, but the killers are long gone, insects too small even for his detection, not much bigger than a pinhead.

Beech scale is the trigger for something called beech bark disease. The tiny insect creates openings for the ultimate predator, a fungus that kills the inner bark and cambium, the very life of the tree. Both scale and fungus are imports.

Scale arrived in North America more than a century ago, probably riding on European beech, but it is a late arrival in Haliburton. You could argue that it rode on the shoulders of climate change.

The insects are able to crawl for only one brief stage of their lives. It takes some external force, wind or birds or animals, perhaps even bewers of fire haps even hewers of firewood, to move them from tree to tree.

Once they settle in, they appear as woolly white tufts on the bark. The fungus makes blotches that accumulate into large patches of dead bark. When they fruit in the fall, the blotches turn red.

Scientists seem vague about when the disease got here, but it appears to be everywhere now. No wonder. Spores of the fungus spread easily in the moist, above-freezing conditions that now make up so much of our 21st century winters.

A paper produced by Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources reports that the insect, the beech scale, flourishes in winters when the temperature doesn't get below minus 25 Celsius.

Oldtimers will tell you that minus 25 nights (and sometimes days) were ordinary in Haliburton, but now real snapping cold is rare enough to cause complaint at supermarket cash registers

Perhaps one in 100 beech trees resists the scale. Saplings growing out of the old roots come under attack.

Beech once was one of the linchpins of the forest on Sapsucker Ridge. The principal large species, more or less in order, were sugar and red maple, yellow birch, basswood, beech, ash and black cherry.

The emerald ash borer will get here later to devastate that tree and the Asian long-horned beetle lurks just over the border, waiting to ambush my maples, but the scale is here right now.

On Sapsucker Ridge, which grows no oaks, no tree was as important a food source for wildlife, especially bears, as the beech. Once my forest depended on it. Now it is going, going, almost gone.

Thank you to Sharon and Bob Briscoe, Barb and Dave Piercey, Laurie McCord, Bronson, and Cheryl for their help during the flood. What would I have done without you and the hours of hard work during the disaster? You are amazing!

Huge thanks to fellow evacuees, Molly McInerney and Guy Dumas, who shared their refuge without hesitation when flooding forced us to leave our home with only a few personal belongings, sleeping bags, and no idea of where we might end up. The Penfolds

My sincere thanks to those kind people who rescued me, providing assistance and comfort over the 30 days following the evacuation on Sunday, April 21. Of particular note is my insurance agent, Glenn Hall, who immediately brought into play the benefits of my coverage. The ladies of Minden United Church, Sue Sisson in particular, who provided all the comforts of her home for the extended period following a seven-day stay at the Minden Motel. From a survivor of 14 city-to-city moves, I am convinced that I would not want to live in any community other than Minden, our home now for 22 years. Thank you Minden. Ray E. Nobles

We would like to thank our family, friends and neighbours for all their support and kindness during this past month. And, to a stranger named Neil, who dropped off Earnhardt Sr. Memorabilia to replace some of what was lost in the flood. Ed and Joan Pritchard

Thank you to all of the volunteers who showed up with pick-up truck after pick-up truck with sand bags and placed them around our home. Also thanks to the Minden Hills Fire Department and volunteers who filled all the sandbags. You are special people. Andy and Sylvia Campbell

A huge big thank you from a very grateful lady and her 100-pound dog goes out to Mr. George Simmons and his lovely wife Glenda for rescuing me when the Irondale River engulfed my home.

We wish to thank Dave Godward, on behalf of all the Shuyler's Island residents and cottagers, for all he did to secure the property (in particular boats and docks) of so many people during the recent floods. Without the hours he spent doing this, many more people would have lost equipment. He went way beyond the call of duty and it is appreciated. We also wish to thank Don Wither for putting on his hip waders every day and wading through 29 inches of water across the causeway to fetch our newspaper. We greatly appreciated being able to keep up with the news, and having it delivered to the door was amazing! Marie and Don Gage

Our thanks to 1) the volunteer fireman who knocked on our door to inform us of upcoming water level problems on Horseshoe Lake, 2) Don and Donna Wither for monitoring lake levels every day and responding to our anxious telephone calls, 3) Marie and Don Gage for using the Internet to keep us in the loop, and for connecting with the TSW and local, provincial and federal politicians, and 4) Dave and Joanne Godward for checking all our properties and finding lost docks, etc. Fran and Norm Smith

Thank you to Joan and Wally Bunn for allowing us to remove a section of their farm field fence, so we could travel by ATV to town for food and supplies.... from the residence at the far end of

AH asks ministry to pay for road

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

Algonquin Highlands township is hoping the Ministry of Natural Resource will pay for repairs the township is going to make to a ministry-owned access road at Sherborne Lake.

Recent rain caused significant washout on the road and while township staff have been in contact with the ministry, Reeve Carol Moffatt told the Times the ministry has indicated it didn't intend to make repairs to the road this year.

We are going to step up and fix the road and we are going to ask the MNR for repayment," Moffatt said following a special meeting of council.

While initial damage estimates were in the neighbourhood of $40,000, that figure is now closer to $67,000.

'We have concerns because we have taxpayers in there," Moffatt said, adding that the Crown land around Sherborne Lake is a popular spot for recreation. "It's not like it's a road to

Leaving the road inaccessible would likely result in revenue loss for the township.

According to the reeve, last year there were approximately 400 camp nights at sites off the road, generating some $16,000 in site rental fees alone.

The damage meant that activities at the recent OPP Ultimate Survivor event that took place at the Frost Centre had to be rerouted and Moffatt said the event is worth $5,000 for the township in campsite fees and rentals.

The township took a $50,000 hit in revenues in its budget this year with the reassessment of provincial parklands.

The reeve had concerns about liability and the continued use of the road by ATVs, campers and four-wheel drive vehicles. While Moffatt said there is some sort of barrier in place, people can just move the barrier and drive around.

Moffatt has also been in contact with Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MPP Laurie Scott, who she said has been lobbying the ministry. The Times had not heard back from the ministry at press time.

Thanking the volunteers of HHHS

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

They work selflessly and quietly behind the scenes at Haliburton Highlands Health Services, helping improve health care for residents.

On June 3, the army of volunteers who donate their time to HHHS were thanked at a volunteer appreciation dinner at the Minden Hills Community Centre.

Some 200 volunteers were in attendance, including those with the Minden and Haliburton auxiliaries, the local hospice and various boards.

"If we had to pay you guys for contributions of your effort and time, it would cost much more than this dinner," said HHHS CEO Varouj Eskedjian. "What you give is priceless."

Dale Walker, executive director of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation said that volunteers were owed a million thank-yous.

"Of course, it would take too long for me to say 'thank you' a million times," Walker said. "The support you provide is next to none.'

Shannon Feir, director of long-term care for HHHS described volunteers as dependable, selfless, talented, rare and generous.

"The commitment you show is only matched by the love you give," she said.

David Jarvis of Haliburton Highlands Mental Health Services thanked his board members.

"They are a dedicated group of people," he said.

Jarvis also took the opportunity to inform the room the board is looking for additional members, particularly younger adults with an interest in mental health.

Help A Village Effort celebrates CIDA completion

A fundraiser at Wintergreen Maple Syrup Barn on Sunday marked the successful completion of an international aid project in India.

Help A Village Effort, a Minden-based charity, partnered with the Canadian International Development Agency to provide 196 wells and 185 EcoSan toilets to nearly as many villages over a four-year period.

CIDA contributed more than $400,000 to the project and HAVE put in nearly $90,000 from donations.

MP Barry Devolin attended the event and congratulated the group on its work.

New perspective for Land Trust chairwoman

Darren Lum

Staff reporter

She's far from done.

But it's time to step back ... a bit.

The Haliburton Highlands Land Trust chairwoman Sheila Ziman, who is a staunch supporter of the environment and booster to preserve the natural heritage for future generations, is stepping down from her chairwoman position, after serving on the board since the start in 2004.

She will continue as a past chairwoman and remain active with the non-profit, non-governmental environmental charity that strives to protect the natural heritage of Haliburton County.

"I'm not leaving the board. I'll still be there and I'm still involved in many different projects," she said.

Dianne Mathes, who was the vice chairwoman last year, has taken over from Ziman since being voted in at the annual general meeting on May 25.

In 2005, the Trust was formed and exists under the Ontario Land Trust Alliance.

There before the trust was formed, when it was just a board of seven in 2004, Ziman is most proud of securing the 500-acre Dahl Forest nature preserve. She regards it as the trust's "jewel in our crown."

"I think it is a wonderful property. It's a wonderful opportunity for us to get people out there enjoying nature and learning more about the natural environment. And, also, explaining what we're doing on that property to protect the natural environment," she said, referring to public events such as interactive hikes on the property. "I'm proud of that and carrying it through, but I'm also really proud that we've found new people stepping up," she said.

There are three properties under its stewardship: Norah's Island, Dahl Forest and Smith Forest. This accounts for close to 600 acres.

The organization is hoping to get an Ontario Trillium Foundation grant so it can hire an executive director, she Ziman is excited for the future with the addition of three members to the board of directors. It now includes Emma Horrigan, Scott Durie and Janette Loveys.

All of them will be great additions, she said.

In particular, Horrigan has a background in plant and microbial biology and forest conservation.

Darren Lum Staff

The Haliburton Highlands Land Trust has hosted many informative events for people of all ages at the Dahl Forest. This expansion was part of the trust's strategic plan

The Land Trust is primarily interested in acquiring lands of ecological and cultural significance for conservation purposes. It selects only those properties that clearly have long-term benefit to the public and can be maintained by the Land Trust in perpetuity.

Ziman, who is commonly associated with the land trust, deflected any notion she was the face of it.

"I think all the board members, all the directors on the board are faces of the land trust. And so are all our members. They are very good ambassadors for the land trust," she said. "We have all our faces on the landscape."

Forest is home to a variety of vegetation such as this morel mushroom,

Four-year-old Ryan King takes a swing at softball during the Minden Youth Softball League at the Minden fairgrounds on Monday, May 27.

Many personal bests at east regional track meet in Belleville

On May 30 and 31, 20 members of the Red Hawks track team went to Belleville for the east regionals track meet. The top four in each category qualify for the Ontario championships in Oshawa next week.

With many personal bests our team performed well.

Ryan Hill had our top finish with a second in javelin with a throw of 43 metres, not close to his record-breaking throw of 50 metres at COSSA last week.

He is saving some big ones for a chance to medal at OFSAA.

Other top finishes were Charlene Hicks with a sixth in triple jump and seventh in 100 metre hurdles, Joel Fedeski with a seventh in shotput, Shae MacNaull with a seventh in javelin, Cody Bain with a eighth in discus and Bri Hicks with an eighth in 100 metre hurdles.

Coaches Caputo, Sisson and Griffith were very proud of all the Red Hawks athletes for their efforts and behaviour.

A big thank you to Earle for driving us everywhere this season, to Jessica Rider and her discus officiating crew for great work under the hot sun.

Where have all the fish gone?

Janet Trull

Special to the Times

The Stanhope Fire Fighters Hall was packed with more than 100 people on Saturday, May 25 as the Coalition of Haliburton Property Owners Association (CHA) and Haliburton Highlands Stewardship Council (HHSC) brought together some of the top fish experts in Ontario for Where Have All The Fish Gone? Both groups were encouraged by the supportive turnout to hear Dr. John Casselman, adjunct professor at Queen's University and former Senior Scientist Fisheries Research for the MNR.

Casselman studied effects of acid precipitation on fish and fisheries in the Highlands at the Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve. This led to the discovery of The Haliburton Gold lake trout. He is widely considered to be one of the top fish experts in the world. His presentation was entitled Haliburton's Lake Trout - from the Past to the Future.

MNR fish biologist David Flowers and Haliburton Forest owner/operator Peter Schleifenbaum, and MNR fish biologists from Peterborough, Minden and Parry Sound also brought their expertise to the presentations and panel discussions, giving the audience a comprehensive overview of local lakes' health.

CHA president Paul MacInnes gave a report on declining oxygen and calcium levels along with increasing lake temperatures, weed growth and algae blooms. Septic systems, particularly those not operating at peak efficiency, and the loss of natural shorelines, contribute to the already too high phosphorus levels in our lakes and the corresponding decline in oxygen. The presentation and panel discussions focused on the importance of the lake trout in determining lake health. This species, found in only 1 per cent of Ontario lakes, is a precious, 10,000-year-old resource that contributes greatly to tourism and the economy. They will not survive in oxygen starved, polluted water. Up to 70 per cent of the trout caught July through September are female lake trout (versus approximately 14 per cent during the rest of the year). Since the average eight-year-old, 2.2 lb. female produces approximately 1,100 eggs, reducing the selective harvesting of mature female fish from mid-summer onward would increase the reproductive capacity of spawning populations. Haliburton Forest changed its lake trout season a few years ago to end July (instead of Sept. 30). This change has resulted in an increase in the Lake Trout population. Fishermen, who were initially upset at the change, now say that it was a great move - the populations have rebounded - best fishing ever. Lake trout spawn in early October and hatch in March. If water levels drop after the spawning, it leaves the spawn without enough cover.

If changes, like this one, are put in place to ensure natural reproduction, our fish populations could be rebuilt in twenty-four years. If not, they will be destroyed.

After a lot of questions and discussion the audience consensus seemed to be clear that our local lakes are facing real and serious threats. There is a heightened awareness about lake health and fish populations. The disappearing lake trout are giving us a dire warning, just as the canary in the coal mine foretold imminent disaster. How can you help? The CHA website (www.cohpoa.ca) offers many suggestions, including a tool kit for lake stewards. Education and action

Think about it

Health unit organizing events, promoting resources for families to encourage healthy babies with healthy brains

Here's something to think about: new research shows the first few years of life are critical for healthy brain development in babies and young children.

Parents and caregivers in Haliburton County are being asked to give the subject more thought, especially by realizing how their daily activities and interactions with babies and young children can stimulate learning and boost brain development.

"You do not need to be an Einstein to nurture and support healthy growth and development in babies and young children," says Kelly Taylor, a family health nurse with the HKPR District Health Unit.

"However it can be difficult to know what to do to help a child's development, especially in the critical early years. That is why we want to promote ways that local families can stimulate a young child's brain activity, by what they do and say and how they interact each day with a baby."

This month, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is launching a Healthy Baby Healthy

Brain campaign to help parents support their young child's brain development.

The local campaign is part of an Ontario-wide initiative of the same name.

The main goal of the campaign is to promote a new website (www.HealthyBabyHealthyBrain.ca) that features videos and other resources for families.

The online videos, which show real-life situations involving families across the province, provide tips on what parents and caregivers can do every day with their baby to promote positive brain development.

Health unit staff will be promoting the website through "Think About It" community events, client visits, social media sites and Facebook advertising.

Two events are being planned for families with young children in Haliburton County.

These free events include snacks and prizes, and provide interactive activities for parents and children to reinforce healthy brain development.

The events take place:

In Minden on Monday, June 10, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Ontario Early Years Centre (144 Bobcaygeon Rd in Sears Building).

In Haliburton Village on Thursday, June 13, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Ontario Early Years Centre (83 Maple Ave., Harco Plaza, lower level).

The Mother's Day cards on the windowsill have now been replaced by birthday greetings as family members helped Bruce blow out the candles on his Friday birthday with younger daughter Caitlin arriving with a second and very elaborate cake the next day.

Once an avid knitter she brought me enough wool to put the nursery rhyme Baa Baa Black Sheep's two bags full to shame and keep the needles here clicking through the summer months. Cait's knitting tension in spite of needle size adjustments was always much looser than mine. On one occasion she crafted a beautiful floral sweater in soft pastel shades so large that both Cait and her close friend Tara had their picture taken wearing it together at the same time. Later on Sunday as calm returned the old cat Clarence finally emerged from his hiding place while the more social beings Taffy, Jake and Bruce seemed a little saddened as all that remained were those welcome windowsill cards.

The Township of Algonquin Highlands has been given the opportunity to place a slogan or welcome message on their MTO highway boundary signs. At its regular meeting held on May 2, council selected four slogans from a list of suggestions. Now they are asking for your help!

Which slogan or welcome message would you like to see on Algonquin Highlands MTO boundary signs? 1. Adventure Begins Here 2. All Trails Lead Here 3. Your Adventure Awaits 4. A Cut Above the Rest. Head to www.algonquinhighlands. ca news and events page and follow the link to vote for your favourite. Please vote only once per person. Duplicate entries will be disqualified. Voting closes on Monday, July 15 at 4 p.m. For more information, email info@algonquinhighlands.ca or call 705-489-2379.

There are a lot of high school students out there who require 40 hours of volunteer service before they can graduate. Barb Townes and friends would like to get the word out to help kids find hours and groups find volunteers. Is your business, church, organization, volunteer group, etc., in need of some help? If so, we can see about putting something in the Dorset column, The Dispatch paper, or it can go on the community website events section. If you are interested, please let Barb know by June 15 with the name of the organization, a contact person, phone number/e-mail address. Barb can be contacted by email to bjtownes@vianet.on.ca or telephone 705-

Learn to appreciate nature

Gina Atkinson Stanhope Life

705-489-2008 pinereflections@sympatico.ca

This Saturday at around 2 p.m., The Highlands Trio will be the guests on Canoe FM. Malcolm MacLean will be interviewing them and I understand that Dave, Frank and Mike, who are the Highlands Trio, will be performing around five or six of their favourite tunes. This will be a sampling of the music they perform, which will be sure to bring you out on June 15 to the Carnarvon Bowl and Restaurant for a full evening of unbelievable fun.

So listen in this Saturday and you will know what we are talking about!

Then on Sunday, the next edition of the Healing Garden Workshop Series will be held in the peaceful setting behind Pine Reflections Gift and Garden Centre located on Highway 35 just north of Highway 118.

This weekend's workshop is entitled "Let's Talk About the Birds and the Bees ... and Butterflies." This series of workshops is designed to bring you back to nature, to appreciate the natural beauty around us this time of the year. If you want information on this workshop or future workshops at Pine Reflections check out Facebook or please call Rebecca at 705-489-1541, barknursery@hotmail.ca. Registrations are required to ensure a space, so please call 705-489-1397 or register at pinereflections@ sympatico.ca, or by calling Rebecca directly.

Is there a better way to spend an afternoon than learning about birds and butterflies?

You might have a problem understanding where the bees fit in but everything does have a purpose and you will find out at this workshop!

How will you arrive? That's the question being asked by Gail and Mike Holness who are busy setting up an event for the end of this month.

They are organizing a green yoga fundraiser and all proceeds are for the Minden Hills flood relief trust fund. This event is scheduled for Saturday, June 29 starting at 9:30 a.m. at 1160 Kushlong Lake Rd. (just past The Little Tart in Donald).

It doesn't matter how you get there, but bring family and friends to reach out to our neighbours in need. There will be people biking, jogging, hiking and even paddling down the Burnt River, but if you are the traditional driver then carpooling is allowed.

Check out their website www.holness-yoga.com or contact them either at gailholness@gmail.com or by calling direct at 705-455-9294.

Be part of this great adventure and make a difference! Driving back from the city Sunday night, I was dismayed by the number of dead turtles on the road.

So in closing my column this week I would like to remind everyone that those dark spots on our roads are these wonderful turtles trying to make it to the other side, so please watch your speed so that you will see

I am embarrassed to say that I am a reformed speed demon and still have to watch that in myself (I blame a Camaro Z28 for this).

I think living up here changed that in me since I have come to realize just how many animals can come in contact with my car, and I really don't need to be traumatized for days because of something I did.

Slow down, enjoy the scenery and save a life. Have a great week!

To my valued customers,

Every effort has been made since purchasing Hyland Taxi in 2003 to successfully provide safe, well maintained vehicles and reliable in the past 10 years.

Rising operational costs, parts and maintenance, continuously risin and insurance costs, as well as drivers difficulties due to a tremendous increase in living expenses have service while maintaining reasonab rates which have increased only twice alternatives but to raise taxi rates effective June 13. A senoirs' discount will be implemented to assist those on lower fixed incomes. Even with this increase Hyland Taxi's rates remain lower, if not the lowest compared to other rates throughout the province.

Hyland Taxi provides 24 hour/day service, never closing. Many smaller communities similar to ours do not rovide the same. Your un in this matter is greatly appreciated.
